Hey Brains, we have a "camp" just South of Titusville. But babies/kids have kept us away for the most part for a couple years. Trying to get up more this year. Not sure what part of Oil we're planning on fishing. In the past we have fished the delayed harvest areas on opening day. It didn't really seem to be less crowded from what I remember. I like to get away from the crowds. The only problem is my fishing partner is having hip problems and may not be able to hike too far.

I've had success opening week with Buggers, Picket Pin (when fish are rising), and just your general nymphs. Or whatever Mike at Oil Creek Outfitters tells me to buy that day! I was just looking to get a little more specific with my fly selection this year.
