

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Stream levels

Re: Stream levels

Author: : Chaz

Date: : 2013/4/9 22:40:26

URL:

I've fished four streams in the last eek and was just looking at the gauge for Pine Creek and even though flows seem low, I can honestly say that the streams are fine right now. Many of the gauges have been on creeks for a long time. USGS has said that run-off on many rivers and streams happens 2 to 3 weeks earlier than it used to due to Climate change. What this does is it scews the flows asthey are reported, as being lower than what they've been in the past.

Translated we may be seeing the new normal for this time of the year. I don't doubt we need rain though.