650 is way out of the question. My limit is 450 - At that discharge the water is moving and has some serious force behind it that can make wading sketchy. I know that river well and know what spots to hit up given the discharge. If you are unfamiliar with the J I would wait until it gets down around 400 because if its off color and you don't know the best places to cross/wade/step you could be going for a swim.
