

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Kokanee in PA

Re: Kokanee in PA

Author: : Chaz

Date: : 2013/4/12 9:24:27

URL:

Probably not, a bunch of bucket biologists started putting all kinds of fish in the pond and PFBC eventually tried to kill the pond and return it to a trout ponn, which it was before anyone had the bright idea to put in rubber fish. It failed, there are still WW fish in it along with rubber trout maybe a few wild brookies, and I've heard that some salmon survived, but I've never caught any. Kokone don't grow very big in PA so I wouldn't bother going there to target them, but it would be neat to catch one.