

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Pine/Kettle creek magic?

Re: Pine/Kettle creek magic?

Author: : David

Date: : 2013/4/12 19:30:50

URL:

It's all relative... If I just wanted the bigger fish, I'd move to New Zealand. Yes, the limestones have bigger fish. The challenge is still to find the biggest fish in the area. Or the prettiest, or the smartest, or the most difficult cast... The challenge of the fish is up to you!

The scenery, the hatches, the diversity of water (BIG to small), the diversity of fish (wild brookies to stocked pigs and everything inbetween), the bald eagles. My wife once sat down on a rock at Pine and got jabbed in the rear... she pulled out a rattlesnake tooth (luckily, the rattlesnake wasn't attached!)...ie the wildlife.

It's getting away from the city to a place you can get lost if you want.