

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Pine/Kettle creek magic?

Re: Pine/Kettle creek magic?

Author: : Van_Cleaver

Date: : 2013/4/13 17:50:43

URL:

The upper areas of Kettle and little Kettle provided me with some great brook trout fishing a couple years ago. Usually I don't bother with the fly stretch there as there are so many nice pieces of water with nobody on them if you walk a bit. Also, I caught the GD hatch there once on my birthday (Kettle, June 4) and despite fishing over stocked trout it remains one of my highlights. Bugs and fish rising everywhere, nice rainbows in the 13-18" class, and no one else in sight. BTW, every fish I took was on a caddis and I don't feel guilty about it. I'm hoping to fish Upper Kettle again this season if possible; since I'm turning sixty my wife may not be able to say no.