I say of the 30+ I caught, 2 brookies that were pushing 12 inches were possible holdovers. They had perfect fins, but it is kinda hard to say brookies that large were not stocked at one time in another trib and did not migrate to this stream. Everything else was wild browns and native brookies. Actually I lied, I forgot a fished a very small brook, brown and rainbow stream late in the day and caught 2 browns that were about 6 inches. Was fishing that stream in hopes of a wild bow for the wild trifecta. Here is my biggest for the day, 14inches.....

Forgot I took a pic with my buddies phone of the big brookie. You guys tell me what you think.
