Thanks for the constructive input. I typically do not tie the flies for customers as i do my own. I take more time on theirs and follow propotions more. These are more my own personal preferences as I said.

Most of my stuff I would not sell to a guy to be honest. In my experience it is not that crucial, but then again I am not fishing areas with an abundant amount of wild trout. I will tie some up taking the advice of you guys and do a comparison and see if it makes that much of a difference.

I do sometimes wish I had not mentioned that i do get income from tying flies, might not face as much BS on here ;)

I did have a guy slam them on the green vinyl rib hares ear and order 30 more, but this again was not an area with a large amount of wild trout.

Thanks again for constructive criticism
