

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Fish Cat 13

Re: Fish Cat 13

Author: : SBecker

Date: : 2013/4/16 0:37:08

URL:

I can not comment directly about the fish cat 13, however I have used a single man pontoon enough. Fishing out of a toon is something you need to get used to. I am sure it will work fine for the Lehigh. You basically float sideways with your nymph rig or dry dropper rig out in front of you. If you find risers, I normally get out and target them. Unless you have a platform to stand on or feel comfortable standing on the seat. If you can not get out you just anchor up and do your best to target them sitting down. You are basically using the boat to cover as much of water as possible. Many times once I would get to a riffle I will row to the bank and get out and fish the riffle. I have only found my toon to be useful on big water like the Lehigh or Delaware. Btw, I carry two rods on me. One set up with a dry fly and one with a nymph rig.