

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Bowman Creek

Re: Bowman Creek

Author: : flyfishinx2

Date: : 2013/4/17 1:49:49

URL:

Quote:

troutbert wrote:

Quote:

flyfishinx2 wrote:

what's the green arrow pointing at and where would Mountain Springs lake be on that map?

I don't think that shows Mountain Springs Lake. As afish said, it's down near Noxen.

I was up at Mountain Springs Lake last fall, and that area was not chopped up. It looked the same as usual.

But later in the fall they drained the lake, because the dam was unsafe. I believe that is permanent, i.e. the dam will not be rebuilt.

I have mixed feelings about that. It was a very scenic lake. But removing it may reduce the water temps in upper Bowmans Creek and allow free movement of fish up there, so may benefit the brook trout population in upper Bowman Creek.

They drained that a while back and (I think) did some repairs and then re-filled it. That was a nice place to take a child or gf/wife to fish and have a picnic but I think it's obvious that the stream will be better off without it.