Tiger muskies are still in water 10 ft deep and shallower and within 100 ft of shore. Netted 8 more in two days this week. They are now receiving PIT tags...subcutaneous microchips that when scanned with an electronic receiver can identify the specific fish by transmitted number. Of the 15 tiger muskies marked last year we already recovered one among the 16 captured in the past week. The work continues through the rest of this week and then begins sometime (mid-week) at Blue Marsh next week and continues into the following week.
