Phish, I think maybe some people may be hesitant to put their name on the list because the thought of bringing enough food to feed 100 guys is expensive and no one wants to bring that much food.

No one is expected to bring enough to feed 100 people. It's a smorgasbord of things and as long as you bring a decent amount that can be shared, it's all good.

You can add me to the list of food. I'm going to grab a couple cases of 4/1 all beef franks and I can man the grill. I can provide dogs for the freeloaders so the rest of us can enjoy the tenderloin, salmon and ribs. I might even put out a jar for the hot dog fund.

I considered bringing the green chili this year again but it's too much work and I'm lazy. I'll think about bringing some cheese and coney sauce for the dogs but don't bank on that for now.

I understand what you are saying. And you are right. You dont have to bring enough to feed everyone. Just a little something. If you ask me, its not very fair for other people to bring food just to have it eaten by people who didn't bring anything. Called me old fashioned.
