JuniataKid,

I am also a JC graduate! Class of 1986. I wish I was into fly fishing back then but if I was I may have flunked out of school. Little Juniata river is perhaps your best option close to Huntingdon. Standing Stone Creek is a put and take stream with some wild fish in the upper stretches. We used to fish that a lot off Warm Springs Road and further up in Alan Seeger SF.

I lived off campus on 19th street my senior year. We could walk to the Juniata River and catch smallmouth after smallmouth. This would be downstream of the cliffs and upstream of the prison. I'm guessing you can still access the river there. We fished for smallmouth in the fall. Also caught some walleyes in that stretch occasionally.

For the first week of May I would concentrate on the Little Juniata around Barea.
