"Some people say that dubbing under the hackle makes it easier to get the hackle to lay correctly. I find that it is more difficult."

I've been wrapping hackle on built-up fur thoraxes for three decades and have had no problems. I tie 70% thorax duns, 25% compara-duns, and 5% Catskill style duns. I believe Catskill style duns have their place, it's just not in my fly box LOL!

The entire concept of a well tied thorax dun is to built up the thorax prior to winding the hackle - at least that's my concept.
