The last time there was a periodic cicada hatch in SE PA the big carp came into the shallows on lake Nockamixen and you could catch them on the surface. They'd examine the floating bug, suck it in and at the set take off like a locomotive. I don't think I've ever gotten into my backing as often as I did that day. It was a hoot until I finally lost all of my cicada imitations. Definitely tie some up just in case.
