Your fly will fish, yours is better than my first attempt. Any streamer hook can be used, but I find a salt water hook works well. I use a Daiichi 2456 size 2 hook for my clousers. Wider hook gap and shorter shank is helpful for hooking and landing (not losing) fish. As for the eyes, they should be moved forward a bit as noted above. The material looks fine. You can change the amount of material and length for different water conditions and species targeted.
