This thread is amusing to say the least. I've fished MR on and off for at least 10 yrs. Yes there is wild trout, (throughout) and yes I've seen pouching first hand in the usual spots (this is the Poconos after all...sigh)I've had great days, and I've been skunked many times too. I've caught 4" brooks and 15" beat up hatchery rainbows with 3 fins and one eye. I will say that to truly know this stream you need to do a ton of bushwacking, and be tops in your wading game. You will not be blessed with reliable fishing on Mud Run, but if you put in enough time and get to know it, you may think its just worth all the trouble to fish it, or you may say, beautiful stream, but no thanks.

The appeal for me is it's hard ground to cover, few if any fishermen, and it doesn't just give up the goods easily, you have to earn the good days. (well unless you're lucky enough to hit it just right)
