
Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Toothy Critter Success Thread

Re: Toothy Critter Success Thread

Author: : TRE

Date: : 2013/4/22 20:50:41

URL:

Thanks guys. It's the best one that I've got thus far on the flyrod. I have had some action with mid 20-30" fish but spent the offseason developing a larger profile single hook fly. I made the trek to fish Conneaut last weekend and had some action from some small pike, but none large enough to eat the offering.

This fish followed in and ate it boatside after the L turn. I'm still amazed it went so smooth. After the third trip to the net, she was tired enough to slide right in.

Attach file:

 4_21_13release2.jpg (76.80 KB)

