Haha if you are stubborn enough to keep on with that poor streak, you'll definitely become an addict after that first legit trout!

I could help you around the Harrisburg region, but other than that- just keep on keeping on! Save any dry flies for times when you see (many) trout actively feeding from the top. Hold on to the streamers. Newbies (from experience) have poor experience with streamers/wooly buggers. Once you know how to fish them (which, theoretically, can't be wrong- but that's another story) they are great, but they are just going to scare fish until then.

Stick with nymphing in front of you and dead-drifting as far as you can, then repeat. Use a very hearty dry fly or a strike indicator 1.5x the depth of the water until then!
