This thread is stupid. Its full of stupid. TFO's cash in is wickedly smart in cashing in on stupid.

The only "blue printing" they're talking about is splining the rod.

Beyond that, you're able to shave off how much of a fraction of a nanometer of clear varnish over the cloth? And you expect some elite rod maker is able to tell you how that will make a difference in an unfinished rod that lacks all the crap you glue on it which changes the dynamic of the whole damned affair, anyways.

Why I'm bothering to say this is beyond me, because stupid.

"Blueprinting." Sweet Jesus. I bet you own a tactical fly rod.
