With many reasons for not being able to see the bottom the sixth sense you speak of comes with experience dunking flies, which you definitely already have, but like you say tough to convey. When I can't see the bottom of the stream I figure 2- 3 feet above the nymph to start, if I'm not catching the bottom, I adjust weight and distance until I start ticking bottom. Sometimes you just can't get there with an indy depending on depth and current speed.
