wear a hat about 10% of the time.

When that ELISA test comes back pos, you'll wonder if wearing a hat would've been the answer.

I was speaking hat in the strictest of terms, I am definitely not a ball cap guy, I have a Tilley for use in direct sun when there is a chance for a burn. usually have a buff on as a bandana in the kayak (along with a second one to cover neck, chin, cheeks, ears if needed) . The 10% number would be overall in everyday life, when fishing it is closer to 50% with a hat and 95% with some type of head covering.

I am comfortable with my choices.
