Pittflyguy,

The only one I caught so far this year is my current avatar. Got that one during the nice spell of weather at the end of March. One of my goals this year is to catch a 30 inch carp on the fly rod, that one was 3 inches short. Your fly looks like it would be real good for carp. Thanks for sharing the picture. I'm really hoping we can hit them on top here in the southeast this season during the cicada hatch. Should be a flat out blast if it happens! Good luck and keep us posted.
