I have found the opposite of pittflyguy. I really prefer the furled leaders for delicate presentations. I add a longer tippet that I could ever use on a hand tied leader and it will lay out very gently.

I could be mistaken but I think the furled leader history goes back to the chalk streams in scotland/england areas where most if not all there fishing was dry presentation.

The negatives for furled leaders are they don't transfer to nymphing well so if you switch back and forth it may not be the best option unless you want to switch leaders.

+1

However, there are some (overly) heavy mono furled leaders out there that can turnover just about anything you can attach to your tippet. It really depends on what you buy/make.
