My, my, my -- what I've been missing by being out fishing till I got injured. Anyhow:
Troutbert hits it about right. Though I certainly prefer to fish for wild trout, if I lived in an area where that option was not readily available, I would enthusiastically fish for stocked trout. I think where you live will determine what type of trout you can fish for, and it really does not do anyone any good to hammer him or her for fishing for the type of trout that are available to him or her. Not everyone can afford to take big road trips with today's gas prices.
