SBecker, Thank you for the offer! I might just take you up on it. I went to high school around that way and my father still lives up there, so I end up around myself too.

Gorosaurus, yeah I guess I can be pretty stubborn sometimes. Hah, this just seems like something worth the time and effort, and even if I'm not catching anything I still just love being in or along a stream/river. But I did catch 3 fish today. Tiny little sunfish, but its all the other guy fishing there was catching too. I am starting to think I need to find a new spot. I don't recall seeing anyone with a fly rod catching any trout at all...and like I said before, I've put in a bit of time.

Volksnurse, I am definitely not afraid to put a few miles on my car. So far this week I've fished Neshaminy Creek, Tohickon Creek, and the West Branch. I am considering a trip to Valley Creek Saturday to see how that is.
