How do we know what exactly a trout wants to eat. We humans become accustomed to certain dishes - it does not mean we want the same thing all the time!!

Some would say that they (trout) have an 11 second memory and yet it is seldom we catch the same trout every 11 seconds.

Even stocked trout learn from trial and error - and will no longer hit powerbaits, certain flies, and pellets. There are several Palaminos swimming in Pennypack Park that won't hit anything I've laid down to them. They seem to be smart enough to watch other fish get hooked and realize it is danger. I do wonder if they will starve themselves to death.

Since they are stocked fish I will not ask you (Hook_Jaw) for any recommended flies or nymphs. Nor with your response will I take it seriously since you do not fish for stockies.

Anyways, if your not fishing for stocked trout when they are so plentiful this time of year you may be letting yourself down.
