When you're tying these flies how many of each are you tying? I like to line them up in front of me that way if I have something that needs changing on it I've got a visual, once I get it right I take a razor to the "bad" ties and redo. The more of the same pattern you tie the better they come out. Repetition of material handling is important I think. Btw, you'll catch more than sunnies with those. 😊
