Because I do a lot of great lake trib fishing I have had the pleasure of doing battle with many large trout and salmon. Getting that line on the reel and letting a good smooth drag do it's thing is paramount to tiring the fish. Lifting your rod tip is a no, no instead lay it as parallel to the stream as possible and point your reel upstream, this will keep the fish off balance and tire it quicker. Don't horse the fish in and keep your hands on the cork :) If you have a net always scoop it head on, don't chase it tailfirst.
