When a fish runs, let him run, when he stops, reel him in. It all about feel and that comes with experience. Let the rod and reel do their job and you will have no problem landing an 18" fish on 6x tippet or a 15 lb fish on 6 lb tippet.

And side pressure. Don't hold you rod over your head like a hero. Keep the fishes head down by keeping your rod tip low and by your side. Keeping their head down will piss them off a little less and it will be much easier to reel them in. You can learn this from steelheading.

There is not much you can do to get them out of a snag except try to apply aforementioned side pressure to steer them where you want them to go.
