Nice fish! I had the same thing happen (the tree). I was out a few weeks ago on a steelhead stream I frequent, I also fish this stretch of stream for small mouth all summer and one of the best pools was perfectly bisected by a HUGE downed tree that really wrecked the pool. I used to swing through this long pool for steelhead, now that's shot. The spot where the tree fell is right over a group of large rocks that always held some good bass. Oh well, hopefully it will get pushed to the bank durring the next blow out so it no longer crosses the river. Here's for hoping, right?
