"First, start your kids early—and don't start with fly fishing. The idea is to first get them interested in the fish. How they catch them is not important here, so don't be a purist with four- and five-year-old kids. A carton of worms and a bobber is a fine way to get started fishing—that's how most of us started anyway, right?"

That's right. Start them out with with bluegills and worms.
