Thanks for the comments, my yearly trip to the Delaware is always my favorite few days of fly fishing out of the year, even when I don't catch a lot of fish. That area is just gorgeous, and it is my dream to have a little cabin up there during retirement, just to stay for the spring months.

geebee,

I went to the Delaware River Club's fly shop. Not necessarily because it is the best one up there, but I have always liked the way they treat people. I've been to Coz's place and the West Branch Angler, and they are first class people as well. It was kinda special on Thursday, when we stopped by the shop. There was a group of veterans that was up for a float trip, and I was able to thank all of them for their service. After loosing my sister in Afganistan, it was pretty emotional for me to see all those vets up there for a relaxing get away. God bless them for their service, and I hope they caught some big fish!!!!
