They really aren't as fragile as your post would make them seem.

The larger wt rods really are... I've broke them numerous times, always right in the middle of landing a large fish. I have not had as much an issue with the lighter weight rods.

That's a totally differnt stuation than what you describe in your previous post and one that really puts your fish fighting technique in question. One or two broken rods, yeah maybe you can covince us that it is the rod, but "numerous" rods while landing fish?
