We floated from bowmanstown to walnutport, so we didn't pass through Lehighton...

Some decent flows for the weekend seemed to work out well for everyone...that said they just cranked back hard at FEW, and it's raining...hopefully that doesn't mean another blow out later this week, I didn't check how much water is in the res though...

With the temps coming out of the dam just hitting 50 for a few days, the upper end should wake up any day now...I did fished a trib to the gorge last weekend, it was still kinda cold but there was a brief Hendrickson party. Looks like it'll be at least 2 weeks before I can get back up...who know what it'll be like then, I've learned not to get my heart set on anything in this river
