If it's the stream I fish every year when we head to the JAM then I'd tend to agree with Jack. If not, then who knows. All I know is that for me an another fisherman to not come close to 50 fish in 3-4 hours is a bad day. I've seen/caught a good handful in the last 2 years in the 10" range, so wouldn't doubt theres a bunch in there in the 12" range. It probably sucks to see the good genetics come out of the stream, but as long as that's not a weekly occurance, then it's not really that bad.
