

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Who do you think is in the wrong?

Re: Who do you think is in the wrong?

Author: : JackM

Date: : 2013/4/29 19:24:13

URL:

Quote:

wsender wrote:

Out of curiosity Jack, how is it any different then a drivers license?

If you move out of state, establish a new residency, and get a new drivers license, why would you expect your previous license to still be valid?

A little different since the new license would permit him to drive in PA. Not so with a new NC fishing licence. Perhaps he should have inquired whether the "offender" had also obtained a RESIDENT NC license for 2013.

But my point is that the law should not "snap up" unwitting violators. Is this a huge problem for PFBC? I mean people moving out of state mid-year and maintaining their resident's license? I think not.

So then it does not present a real law enforcement issue. Give a warning, or, as noted, make him buy the NR license within so many days-- provide proof and the citation will be dismissed. Now, turn your attention to real poachers.