If given the choice, I will fish for wild fish most times, but I have no beef w/ stockies. This past weekend was the perfect example. Csoult and Wetfly01 headed to Pine on Friday while the rest of us decided to chase wild and natives. We got the skunkin, they had an "epic" day! Our "snobbery" led to our fishing demise (apart from scouting some amazing water that I have no doubt will produce outstanding outings in the near future). Stocked trout definitely have their place. I'm glad they stock streams like Kettle and Pine Creek, though I think Sal had a great point. He said this weekend that they should do what they do in other states, and not allow fishing on certain stream sections during the hottest months.
