

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : Getting Started in Tying

Re: Getting Started in Tying

Author: : Luke

Date: : 2013/4/30 1:33:06

URL:

Pulse that "Hummingbird Fly" across the surface of a good pool near a large trout lie after dark and see if anything finds it tasty!

It kind of reminds me of a mouse...

It is fantastic to see you involving your daughter in your new hobby. I have done a little tying lately and my kids enjoy fooling around too. My son Adam "invented" a green weenie improvement called the "Adam Special" which is a green weenie with a brown hackle feather wound between the wraps of Chenille. I took him out to the West Branch of the Octarora to teach him about fly fishing and I was showing him how to dead drift in a slow pool under the bridge. On the very first cast a stockie rainbow came out of his lie and slammed it. What fun! Adam was so excited that the fly he invented caught a fish on its very first trial!

Peace.