Starvin, While your friend was probably in violation of the law, I can sympathize with being upset over the way you were treated. Assuming everything was civil i think it was totally unnecessary for him to threaten your friend with taking his vehicle and equipment. I know WCO's have a hard job and sometimes work with difficult people, but that's no excuse for being a jerk and certainly no license to threaten people. I've lost a lot of respect for law enforcement and our justice system due to similiar conduct.
