

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Stonefly Nymphs

Re: Stonefly Nymphs

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2013/4/30 11:04:38

URL:

These are fairly big, right? (like, not in the little winter size category).

They could be some sort of salmon fly. But based on the overall shape and the head, I think they are more golden stones (perlidae) like the top one, just likely a different species.