

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Sulphurs

Re: Sulphurs

Author: : PENZZZ

Date: : 2013/4/30 18:56:39

URL:

Jack, was your question about ginger quill directed to me? If so my answer would be that I don't know. Generic names like Ginger Quill can be applied to any number of species. I think someone I know refers to use of ginger quill to imitate Gray Fox spinners.

Regarding the Vitreus, I think a fly pattern tied to imitate the dun is called a Pink Lady. The hatch on Penns is often overlooked, but in my experience the trout get right on them. They hatch in pretty good numbers on the Lehigh. I guess we're getting off topic but when Sulfers are discussed we really should account for the different species that get lumped together. Their sizes, colors and habits are different.

Jeff