
Subject: : Fly Fishing Events and Meet-ups

Topic: : Catskills Chaos early May 2013

Re: Catskills Chaos early May 2013

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2013/5/1 7:47:46

URL:

Quote:

dryflyguy wrote:

I just got back from the delaware last night. Fished 4 days there - 2 on the WB and 2 on the main stem. Blue quills and hendricksons hatched on both - starting about 2-3 in the afternoon. Also had the apple green caddis hatching on the main stem so heavy, that it looked like it was snowing. The rising to the hatches wasn't real great - but I did find enough in certain spots to keep me busy.

Had a pretty good trip overall.

Looks like you guys timed this just right. Have fun!

Just got back last night, too. Fished Monday afternoon and Tuesday with Surf Cowboy and Drunken Bear 🐻

.... 😊

The GLs were crowded, so we went down and fished at Shehawken. Not much happening on Monday with hatches or fish on that rainy, windy afternoon and evening.

We fished the Gamelands (upper) on Tuesday. Lots of bugs - hendricksons, paraleps, olives, various stoneflies & caddis (no apple caddis) but not many risers. We caught a few, but pretty tough.

I heard about the apple caddis on the Mainstem from Westbranch Matt, but decided to stick to the lower WB to fish the Hendrickson hatch. Probably a mistake.

As always, we had fun. Good luck to the PAFFers this coming weekend.