Green Hills Campground, Blue Diamond, and Warrior Ridge are all close.

Green Hills is probably the nicest one of the three and is right on the river.

Blue Diamond is secluded but may have some cabins/cottages available. It's nice also IMO, but geared more toward group retreats than actual camping. Fairly close to the river but back in the boonies so it'll take a few minutes to get on the water

Warrior Ridge seems to have the least accommodations but is conveniently located closer to a beer distributor and closer to a Walmart. It's close to RT 22 so getting from camp to the river is not too bad of a drive at all.

GH and BD have no-alcohol rules.

Sorry, I can't tell you more about motels/hotels. I also believe there are several cabin/cottage rentals along Spruce Creek but I doubt it will be very cheap.
