in my area approx. 40 acres. The can watch each other work. And I no longer need a night light. But I do need ear plugs.

So, they we know they are going to tight spacing on private land.

Now for the next questions.

Are they going to go to tight spacing on state lands? Sproul State Forest?

"The horror, the horror."

Troutbert, the 40 acre spacing is likely NOT horizontal drilling. Pay attention.

By the way, instead of speculating and jumping to conclusions, you can likely look up the permits online to find the type of well and target depth. I have it bookmarked for Ohio, but don't feel a need to look it up for PA. I can not only look up details of new wells, but find details going back a few years. Not sure how far I could go back, because I'm only concerned with new drilling.
