It might be Cook's Creek. Mostly all posted where the limestone springs come in, but I got to fish it when it had some great little black stones. Caught a 4 pound brown about 1 1/2 mile above the Delaware. Don Douple told me that some of the people fed the trout dog food so they got huge. Of course, the open water was darn near devoid of big trout. I made casual friends with a person down there so that granted me some access. A nice lady who was just glad to see everyone wasn't a greedy bastard. I wasn't going to litter or kill the fish, just catch em and put em back and very thankful for the opportunity. But most people wouldn't give a s#!t how careful you are.
