Here's the most recent update as of about 5 hrs ago:

GEESEYTOWN, Pa.—An autopsy is scheduled on the body of a man whose body was found by kayakers in a river in central Pennsylvania.

The Centre Daily Times (<http://bit.ly/165qtBq>) reports the boaters found the body submerged in the water on the Little Juniata River outside of Tyrone in Blair County on Thursday evening.

The man's name is not being released, but investigators say he is a 28-year-old man.

The death is under investigation and an autopsy is scheduled for Friday.
