

---

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Sulphur

Sulphur

Author: : dc410

Date: : 2013/5/5 22:09:36

URL:

I'm pretty sure this is a sulphur. Came off of Donegal Springs Creek. I saw duns coming off (traditional sulphur color) and a fair amount of egg bearing spinners (darker in color with bright orangish-yellow egg sacks attached) hovering over the riffle sections. The one in the picture has more the color of a spinner but the wings are not clear like the spinners were. Maybe it is just kind of in between stages. Just looking to try to learn something about these critters and any info would be great. Thanks.

Attach file:

 Donegal sulphur.jpg (22.20 KB)

