

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Mathematical probability of locating a dropped fly

Re: Mathematical probability of locating a dropped fly

Author: : salmonoid

Date: : 2013/5/7 20:32:08

URL:

It is in the center of the pic. The fly has sentimental value; it's a deer hair mouse I tied years ago at a fly-tying course I took from Ed Kraft. The only fish it has caught have all been large night-time brownies. I don't know that other flies wouldn't work but I know this one was effective and I did not want to use it. That trip, it was for practical purposes as well - I had no other large flies on my, as I had bought a few at Bass Pro on the trip up, but managed to forget them about six miles out at my vehicle.