Try the link in the upper right corner of this page: "Pennsylvania Trout Streams." These are mostly well known waters and many of the bridges have pull offs where you can park. In the end, you really have to do some exploring to find these access spots. If this is genuinely a problem, visit the streams on public land in state parks or state forests. Access areas are usually much more obvious on public land and you can cross fields and woods to get to the water.
